This logo represents the foundation almost like an analogue. It basically is just an analogue in a picture. The logo compares an atom with the foundation in a few ways. The most important is the way they work what I mean by that is the way that they are at work. For example the logo has the rings of an atom and instead of electrons making its outside it has the symbols of the three goals of the foundation. Then the nucleus, instead of the center being protons and neutrons it is the Islamic symbol, a star and crescent moon.
